

ROLL OF THE DICE:

How the hand we're dealt predicts racial & economic equity.

Friday, May 31, 2013

12:00 PM - 4:00 PM

YVCC - Hoph Union Building

ENDORSERS

Training Location:
YVCC - Hoph Union Bldg.

HOW THE HAND WE'RE DEALT PREDICTS RACIAL & ECONOMIC EQUITY

Yakima County and Washington State

WHAT IS A ROLL OF THE DICE?

Roll of the Dice is an interactive training "game" created in 2011 by and for the King County Coalition on Racial Disproportionality as a means to educate its members about the causes and effects of racial disproportionality as it is found across major systems like education, health, child welfare and juvenile justice. The experience brings together readily available quantitative research/statistical measurements in a fun, personal and interactive manner that mobilizes participants to better digest, integrate and apply research and evaluation into their efforts. It feels like playing a game with the side benefit that participants learn how statistics and research can help them improve their communities.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING ABOUT ROLL OF THE DICE

"Roll of the Dice is a powerful approach to educating people about how institutional policies and practices and embedded inequities converge to perpetuate racial disparities. It brings the stories behind the disparities to life, gets people talking to one another, and sets the stage for a deeper examination of the issues and what we as individuals and a community can do to resolve them."

Yvonne Redding-White, Community Impact Manager, United Way of King County

"The Roll of the Dice program addresses important issues in our community. Roll of the Dice is a particularly effective way to meet friends and gain valuable knowledge about resources to address racial and economic inequities in the community."

Joe D. Coulter, Ph.D., Professor, Community and Behavioral Health, College of Public Health, University of Iowa

For more information: (509) 895-7771 / btaliciagarza@gmail.com

Register online: www.rollofthedice.org